REPORT OF ENGINEERS.

During the year ending Feb. 1, 1888, there were three alarms of fire.

May 1, 1887, was caused by fire in Central House, owned by Lydia J. Perrigo, and occupied by M. G. Barr as a hotel. This fire probably originated from a kerosene lamp, which the occupant of the room had left burning while absent.

May 14, 1887, was caused by fire upon woodland near the residence of Lucy and Mary Morse, and was extinguished before any damage had been done.

Nov. 12, 1887, was caused by the burning of the Almshouse, which was a total loss, and originated from defect in chimney.

The Engine Company has forty-four men, including officers.

The Hook and Ladder Company has twenty men, including officers.

During the year new hose has been purchased to replace that which had become worthless, and such other repairs made as the good of the service seemed to demand.

REPORT OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

In accordance with the statutory requirement, the Committee would submit the following report:—

All our schools are doing good work; the teachers, with a single exception, having been previously employed, some of them for a long time, and having earned the confidence of the Committee and of the public by their fidelity to the trusts committed to them. To say that our schools are doing everything that the variously exacting requirements of the public demand or expect would be saying too much. The Committee and the teachers themselves are as fully aware of past and present defects as any one, and are constantly laboring to improve in management and methods.

Much attention has been given to the course of study, with a view to embodying in the instruction those things which are found most useful in progressive schools elsewhere, without giving too much heed to vagaries which sometimes appear under the head of educational progress. It is the aim of our schools to give a thorough preparation in the fundamental branches of an English education. Some things which are useful, and which may be more effectively attended to in places where the number of children makes a closer grading possible, we are constrained to pass over somewhat lightly. But in those things which every intelligent citizen is supposed to know, and which go so far towards forming a basis for good citizenship, we feel confident that our public schools are giving sound instruction. Besides this something is done in singing and drawing; instruction in physiology, especially in connection with the effects of stimulants and narcotics, is regularly given; the phonic elements of English speech, thanks to the special interest of a member of the Committee, have received greater attention than formerly, with evident improvement in the pupils' articulation; and in the higher department of the Centre School such attention is given to history, commercial and physical geography, higher mathematics, and languages, as the condition of the classes and the length of stay on the part of the pupils admit.

Still greater attention to courses, methods, and subjects of study for both the graded and ungraded schools is now contemplated; and for this purpose the Committee has placed in the hand of each teacher a copy of Prince's admirable work on these topics,—a work that receives the highest praise of Normal principals as well as of the Secretary of the State Board.

As to School buildings: The South School-house, comparatively new, needed but few repairs aside from the ordinary. The North School-house was put in as comfortable and presentable shape as the somewhat dilapidated condition of its interior would allow. More extensive repairs will be required before very long, and it is in need of better school furniture. That now in use, having seen nearly forty years of service, is defaced and of an antiquated pattern. The children of that locality should have surroundings for their school life as convenient and attractive as do those of neighboring towns or the children of other parts of our own town.

The Centre School-house, after several years of effort on the part of the friends of the school, has received attention, and has been substantially rebuilt. Two well-lighted and desirable school-rooms have been added, which, with ample dressing-rooms, passage-ways, and out-buildings, and with the steam-heating apparatus, make a building for educational purposes which, for convenience and attractiveness, is a credit to the town, and which will be ample for its wants for some time to come. The changes which were made necessarily consumed much time; but, with the characteristic energy of the building committee and the contractor, the work was very nearly finished during the summer vacation, so that the commencement of the fall term was delayed but two or three weeks. The house not only shows the good taste of those who had charge of its construction, but is also well and substantially built in every part. The School Committee procured furnishings in keeping with the style of the building, and we may now justly congratulate ourselves that our village is as well supplied in respect to school accommodations as any of our neighboring towns. And, though we may feel that the cost is considerable, yet most of our thrifty citizens will concede that it is often better economy to pay the higher price and have a really good thing.

Miss Clifford, after three years of efficient service on our Committee, at the beginning of last year declined further connection with it. She had, since the text-book law was enacted, taken charge of the supplies of all kinds furnished to the schools by the town; and neither of the present Committee being so situated as to make it possible to transact this part of the business with the care that should be given to it, and at the same time with convenience to the schools, we have appointed Mr. J. B. Hale as our agent for this purpose, his long connection with the schools making him especially fitted to take charge of purchasing and distributing these supplies.

A most creditable display of pupils' handiwork, in great variety, was made at the close of the last school year in June. The crowds of parents and friends who attended, as well as on the occasion of the presentation of diplomas to graduates of the High School course, showed the interest of the people in the schools. The proceeds of the show of pupils' work, as also of a concert kindly given by Miss Mason of Boston, for the purpose, added to the fund raised by the energetic efforts of Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Marshall, were applied to the purchase of a fine organ for the use of the High School room.

While the schools in surrounding towns have been much interrupted by prevailing sickness among the children, we have gratefully to report that the health of the pupils in our schools has been good; and no death has occurred among them during the year.

A very pleasing degree of enthusiasm and public spirit has manifested itself at the North School in the setting out of shade trees upon the school grounds, the pupils with parents and friends observing "Arbor Day" in a most creditable manner. The location of the South School offers facilities for making its surroundings more than ordinarily attractive by a similar effort, and the grounds about the building at the Centre are susceptible of much improvement. Let us hope that the good example furnished at the north-erly end of the town will be followed at the other schools.

Number of children between five and fifteen years of age in the town May 1, 1887.—178.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The past year has been as successful as usual. We have endeavored, in the buying of books, to cater to all tastes, and in the majority of cases have purchased works suggested by our patrons.

A new catalogue has been prepared, which is much more comprehensive than has ever been attempted here before. It contains a separate index of subjects, titles, and authors. The issue contains only the books added during 1886 and 1887. Over seven thousand volumes have been circulated during the year.

There is a decided improvement in the class of books read by the young people; and works upon science, art, and manufactures have been purchased for their benefit. The school-teachers encourage this kind of reading, and the Trustees are glad to meet the demand.

Of late we have adopted the plan of adding about ten volumes per month, and have found it more satisfactory than making a considerable addition at once.

Our financial account will be found elsewhere.

Submitted for the Trustees,

J. HERBERT BAKER,

Secretary.
